Beaches

Home

Agios Pavlos

- 30 minutes from Neapoli, with the last kilometers on a moderately difficult dirt road.
- Swim near the small chapel, on your right before reaching the beach—no matter the weather, the sea is always calm.
- You'll likely be alone, sitting outside the chapel, surrounded by thyme, with fish-filled waters.
- It stands out for its lush landscape and the Vavila–Kounos Wildlife Refuge that surrounds it.
- Very close to the beautiful seaside village of Velanidia.

Beaches Home

Petrified Forest

- Just before Cape Maleas and 25 minutes from Neapoli, with a short easy dirt road at the end.
- Beautiful turquoise waters and natural shade from the rock after 12:00 (no umbrella needed).
- There is a mild hiking route along a narrow path carved into the rock, followed by walking over rocks to reach the beach.
- On your way back, it’s worth stopping at the “Neraida” tavern in the village of Agios Nikolaos. Don’t miss their ice cream!

Rismari

- Similar waters to the Petrified Forest, without the hike.
- 20 minutes from Neapoli.

Beaches Home

Thief’s Furrow [“Kleftavlako”]

- A hidden cove, fully protected from the sea.
- There is a cave next to the very small beach, which used to be a shelter for local pirates.
- Beautiful waters and a unique rocky seabed.
- 30 minutes from Neapoli, much of it on a dirt road.

Beaches Home

(After) Ammitsa

- A series of small coves, most of which fit only a few people at a time.
- Great waters, very close to Neapoli (5 minutes).
- Accessible also on foot.

Beaches Home

Pounta – Pavlopetri – Hamokelo

- A sequence of beaches forming a long coastline, 20 minutes from Neapoli.
- The submerged ancient city of Pavlopetri is visible. You can follow the buoys and freely explore by swimming above it.
- Located directly opposite the exotice island of Elafonisos, with turquoise waters and golden sand similar to the island—but cleaner and without the crowds.
- The vast Hamokelo beach (to the left as you enter the preceding wetland area) is more protected from the weather.
- You can get food from the nearby tavern (“Pounta”) and eat on the beach.
